

THE MINDSET SAUCE

DAILY EXECUTABLES

— YOUR DAILY OPERATING SYSTEM —

THIRTY DAYS.
EVERY DAY.
WITHOUT EXCEPTION.

THE VARIABLE WAS NEVER THE SYSTEM.
THE VARIABLE IS THE PERSON WHO LEAVES.

THE MINDSET SAUCE

Daily Executables

Six-Module Practice Guide

Your complete daily practice — extracted from all six modules

Total daily practice time: 25–35 minutes

HOW TO USE THIS GUIDE

The Daily Stack

One document. Everything you do. Every single day.

This guide extracts the complete daily practice from all six modules of The Mindset Sauce and presents them in the order you perform them — morning through evening. Read the full course modules to understand the why behind each practice. Use this document every day as your operating manual.

The practices are designed to stack — each one feeds the next. The morning protocol from Module One opens the window. The mirror declaration from Module Five speaks through it. The SATS practice from Module Two closes the day with the assumption the morning planted. Every practice in between sustains and deepens the transformation.

THE COMPLETE DAILY STACK AT A GLANCE

Morning (15–20 minutes)

- No phone — first 10 minutes (Module 1)
- Three arrival breaths (Module 1)
- Mirror declaration — full voice, eye contact (Module 5)
- Read your Statement of Desire aloud (Module 3)
- Silence question — hold it for 60 seconds (Module 1)
- Morning feeling check — 30 seconds (Module 4)
- Write one sentence of identity intention (Module 1)

Throughout the Day (5–10 minutes total)

- Assumption audit — 3x daily, 60 seconds each (Module 2)
- Inner speech intercept — 3x daily (Module 4)
- Micro-declaration — 3x daily (Module 5)
- Why practice — once at midday, 3 minutes (Module 3)
- Embodiment practice — once, 5 minutes (Module 4)
- Challenge response — as needed (Module 5)

Evening (10–15 minutes)

- Desire renewal statement (Module 3)
- Evening feeling review — 3 questions (Module 4)
- Evening mirror practice — 3 minutes (Module 5)
- Circle audit — weekly (Module 6)
- Evening environment review (Module 6)
- Revision practice (Module 2)
- Sleep declaration (Module 5)

- SATS practice — 10 minutes (Module 2)

THE 30-DAY COMMITMENT

Napoleon Hill found that new mental habits require a minimum of 30 consecutive days of consistent practice before they operate automatically. Neville Goddard found that assumptions must be persisted in until they feel more natural than the ones they are replacing.

30 days. Every day. Without exception. Not when you feel like it — every day. The days you do not feel like it are the days that matter most.

MODULE ONE

The Soil Before the Seed

Daily Executive Practice

Theme: Preparation · Purpose · The Morning Mind

MODULE ONE DAILY PRACTICE

Time required: 15–20 minutes each morning. Performed before the phone, before news, before any external input reaches the subconscious.

1 No Phone — First 10 Minutes

Place your phone across the room from your bed tonight — not on silent, not face down. Across the room. The moment of maximum pull toward the phone is the first 30 seconds of waking. Physical distance removes the decision.

If you use your phone as an alarm, purchase a basic alarm clock. The cost is the price of protecting your most valuable mental real estate — the alpha-state morning window when your subconscious is most receptive to new impressions.

WHAT YOU ARE PROTECTING

The alpha brainwave state — the 10–30 minute morning window when the analytical mind has not yet fully engaged and the subconscious is close to the surface and unusually receptive. Every morning you hand this window to your phone, you hand your most powerful programming time to someone else's agenda.

Every morning you protect it, you give it to yours.

2 The Arrival Practice — 3 Breaths

Sit upright. Both feet on the floor. Take three slow, deliberate breaths:

- Inhale for 4 counts
- Hold for 2 counts
- Exhale for 6 counts

This is not meditation. It is a physiological reset — shifting the nervous system from the stress response into the calm, alert state Napoleon Hill described as the foundation of effective subconscious communication. Three breaths. Then move to Step 3.

3 | Speak Your Definite Chief Aim Aloud

Take your written Definite Chief Aim and read it out loud. Full voice. If you are not yet comfortable doing this, whisper it — but commit to full voice within 5 days.

As you read, hold the feeling of the outcome already achieved. See the specific moment. Feel the specific emotion. This is the practice that bridges Module One to Module Two. The spoken aim with felt certainty is both Hill's autosuggestion and Neville's living in the end, operating simultaneously.

THE DEFINITE CHIEF AIM — WHAT IT MUST CONTAIN

- A specific, measurable outcome — not a direction, a destination
- A specific date by which you will have arrived
- The feeling — written as present-tense current experience
- What you are giving in exchange — named and accepted
- Your signature — this is a contract, not a wish

4 | The Silence Question

After reading your Definite Chief Aim, close your eyes and hold one question silently for 60 to 90 seconds:

"What is the one action I could take today that would move me most directly toward this goal?"

Do not force an answer. Do not brainstorm. Simply hold the question and wait. The subconscious mind, given a clear question and genuine silence, will produce answers that the analytical mind alone never reaches. The answer may arrive in the silence — or later in the day, as if from nowhere.

5 | Write One Sentence of Identity Intention

In your dedicated physical journal — not your phone — write one sentence describing who you intend to be today. Not what you will do. Who you will be.

Present tense. Written by hand. Before any other activity.

EXAMPLE IDENTITY INTENTION SENTENCES

"Today I am the person who acts from certainty rather than waiting for permission."

"Today I am the builder — taking one real action toward what I have already decided is real."

"Today I am the person for whom the outcome is simply the natural expression of who I already am."

"You have absolute control over but one thing, and that is your thoughts. This is the most significant and inspiring of all facts known to man. If you fail to control your own mind, you may be sure you will control nothing else."

— Napoleon Hill, Think and Grow Rich

MODULE ONE — DAILY CHECKLIST

- ☐ Phone stayed across the room — alpha state protected
- ☐ Three arrival breaths completed
- ☐ Definite Chief Aim read aloud — full voice
- ☐ Silence question held for 60 seconds
- ☐ One identity intention sentence written by hand

MODULE TWO

The Assumption

Daily Executive Practice

Theme: Assumption · SATS · Revision

MODULE TWO DAILY PRACTICE

Module Two adds three practices to the daily stack: the Assumption Audit three times during the day, the Revision Practice before sleep, and the SATS Practice at the threshold of sleep. The SATS practice is the most important single practice in this entire course. Do not skip it.

1 Assumption Audit — 3 Times Daily

Morning, midday, and afternoon — pause for 60 seconds and ask yourself one question:

"What am I currently assuming about myself in relation to my Definite Chief Aim?"

Not what you are thinking. Not what you are feeling emotionally. What you are assuming — the settled, background inner belief about what is true about you and what is possible for you right now.

If the current assumption is gap language — lack, doubt, limitation, fear — perform the brief imaginal correction: 10 seconds in the end-state feeling, seen from the inside, felt with settled certainty. Then continue with your day.

If the current assumption is end-state language — proceed. You are on track.

2 The Revision Practice — Before Sleep

Before entering your SATS scene each evening, spend 3–5 minutes on the Revision Practice. Choose one event from the day that carried a negative inner charge.

THE FOUR-STEP REVISION

Step A: Identify the event. Name it clearly — the conversation, the rejection, the setback, the moment of doubt.

Step B: Replay the original briefly. Acknowledge it without dwelling. You are not suppressing — you are seeing it clearly before you revise it.

Step C: Revise it completely from the inside. Replay the scene exactly as you wish it had gone — from the first person, present tense, as the occupant of the scene, not the observer. Be specific. Be sensory.

Step D: Hold the feeling of resolution for 60 seconds. Not excitement. Resolution. The quiet sense of: yes. That is how that went. Good.

Release the scene. Move directly into the SATS Practice.

3 | The SATS Practice — Every Night

The State Akin to Sleep is Neville Goddard's most powerful technique. Performed every night, it impresses the subconscious with the assumed identity of the fulfilled state during the period of maximum receptivity — the threshold between waking and sleeping, where the analytical mind relaxes its resistance.

SATS — THE FIVE-STEP PROTOCOL

Step 1: Choose your scene before you lie down. One specific, short scene — 30 seconds to 3 minutes — that implies your desire is already fulfilled. Not a scene of receiving. A scene of having. A moment that could only exist if the outcome were already completely real.

Step 2: Lie down. Let the body relax completely. Allow the mind to become drowsy — not asleep, not alert. The threshold. You will know you are there when thoughts begin to drift slightly and the grip of the logical mind loosens.

Step 3: Enter the scene from the inside — as the occupant, not the observer. First person. Present tense. You are living it, not watching it.

Step 4: Add sensory detail. What do you see from your own eyes? What do you hear? What is the physical sensation? And most importantly — what is the feeling-tone? Quiet. Natural. Settled certainty. Not excitement. The unremarkable feeling of a fact.

Step 5: Loop the scene gently. Play it through once with full feeling, then return to the beginning. Again. Like a song you are falling asleep to. Drift into sleep inside the assumption.

THE MOST COMMON SATS MISTAKES

- Watching yourself from outside instead of living the scene from inside
- Feeling excitement instead of settled certainty
- Choosing a scene of receiving instead of a scene of already having
- Changing the scene every night — use the same scene for 7 consecutive nights minimum
- Abandoning after a few days with no visible outer results

“Sleep in the assumption that your wish is fulfilled. When you have found the feeling of the wish fulfilled, seal it by going to sleep in that feeling.”

— Neville Goddard, Feeling Is the Secret

MODULE TWO — DAILY CHECKLIST

- ☐ Assumption audit completed — morning
- ☐ Assumption audit completed — midday
- ☐ Assumption audit completed — afternoon
- ☐ Revision practice completed — one event from the day
- ☐ SATS practice completed — entered the scene from inside
- ☐ Fell asleep inside the assumption

MODULE THREE

Burning Desire

Daily Executive Practice

Theme: Desire · Fuel · The Written Contract

MODULE THREE DAILY PRACTICE

Module Three adds three specific daily elements to the stack: the morning Statement of Desire read aloud, the midday Why Practice, and the pre-SATS Desire Renewal. These practices ensure the burning desire is fed and maintained even when life, distraction, and the absence of immediate outer evidence try to cool it.

1 Morning — Statement of Desire Read Aloud

Immediately after your mirror declaration from Module Five (which we will build in Module Five's section), take your written six-element Statement of Desire and read it aloud. Full voice. Standing if possible.

This is Hill's autosuggestion practice applied to the six-element written contract. Not a recitation. A declaration. Read it as the person who is already living in the outcome — because according to the Law of Assumption, that is precisely who you are in the process of becoming.

THE SIX-ELEMENT STATEMENT OF DESIRE — WHAT YOURS MUST INCLUDE

Element 1: The exact outcome — written in present tense as already real.

Element 2: What you are giving in return — time, comfort, security, sacrifice. Present tense.

Element 3: The exact date — 'By [date], this is my reality.'

Element 4: The first three actions of your plan — written as already in progress.

Element 5: The feeling — a full paragraph describing what it feels like in daily life to be the person for whom this outcome is simply the current state of affairs.

Element 6: Your signature — dated and signed. This is a contract.

2 | Midday — The Why Practice

Once per day — at lunch, at a break, while driving — take 3 minutes and write or speak aloud your answer to one question:

"Who specifically benefits when I achieve this, and what does their life look like because of it?"

Hill found consistently that desires connected to others — to family, to people you want to serve, to a community you want to impact — burned longer and more intensely than desires connected only to personal gain.

The Why Practice makes the other-referential dimension of your desire vivid and specific every single day. See them specifically. Feel their reality. Let your desire for their outcome fuel the days when desire for your own outcome alone is not enough.

3 | Evening — Pre-SATS Desire Renewal

Before your nightly SATS practice — after your evening feeling review and before your sleep declaration — spend 60 seconds on the Desire Renewal. This bridges the day's reality and the night's assumed identity, preventing the exhaustion of the day from becoming the assumption of the night.

Lie down. Take three breaths. Then speak — aloud or internally, with feeling:

THE DESIRE RENEWAL STATEMENT — SPEAK THIS EVERY EVENING

"Whatever happened today, my desire is unchanged. Whatever evidence the outer world produced today, my assumption is unchanged. I know where this is going. I know who I am in the process of becoming. Tonight I sleep in the feeling of that person. And tomorrow I continue the work of that person. The fire is burning. It does not require today's evidence to stay lit."

Then enter your SATS scene. The Desire Renewal ensures you enter the most receptive state of your day — the threshold of sleep — from renewed assumption rather than accumulated doubt.

"Desire is the starting point of all achievement. Not a hope, not a wish, but a keen pulsating desire which transcends everything."

— Napoleon Hill, Think and Grow Rich

MODULE THREE — DAILY CHECKLIST

- ☐ Statement of Desire read aloud — morning, full voice
- ☐ Why Practice completed — midday, 3 minutes
- ☐ Desire Renewal statement spoken — before SATS

MODULE FOUR

Feeling Is the Secret

Daily Executive Practice

Theme: Feeling · Certainty · The Body as Instrument

MODULE FOUR DAILY PRACTICE

Module Four adds four practices: the morning feeling check, the inner speech intercept three times daily, the Embodiment Practice once daily, and the evening feeling review. These practices ensure that the quality of feeling — the settled, embodied certainty that is the operative force of the entire system — is consistently monitored, cultivated, and deepened.

1 Morning — Feeling Check (30 Seconds)

Before reading your Statement of Desire, perform a 30-second feeling check. Sit quietly. Bring your primary goal to mind as a felt sense. Notice — without judgment — what the body produces.

THE DIAGNOSTIC QUESTION

Is the predominant feeling in my body right now the feeling of wanting — or the feeling of having?

Wanting: longing, excitement, anticipation, hope, 'I really want this.' The subconscious receives this as the instruction of not-yet-having.

Having: settled, familiar, quiet, certain, unremarkable. The subconscious receives this as the instruction of already-having.

The check takes 30 seconds. It gives you accurate information about what instruction your subconscious is receiving as you begin the day. Use that information to read the Statement of Desire with attention to the lines that produce the greatest shift toward certainty — dwell there, not rush through.

2 Inner Speech Intercept — 3 Times Daily

Morning, midday, and afternoon — pause for 60 seconds and listen to your inner speech. The continuous, quiet, private monologue running beneath the surface of every conscious activity. Ask:

"What has my inner speech been broadcasting about me and my goal for the last hour?"

If the predominant statement is end-state language — the inner speech of the person who has already arrived — acknowledge it and continue. You are on track.

If the predominant statement is gap language — the inner speech of someone who wants something they do not yet have — perform the three-step replacement:

THE THREE-STEP INNER SPEECH REPLACEMENT

Step 1: Catch. Notice the negative statement without alarm or self-criticism. Simply: 'There it is. That is the old program.'

Step 2: Release. Choose not to continue it. Not suppression — release. You are not fighting the thought. You are simply not feeding it.

Step 3: Replace from the end state. Internally speak the statement of the person who is already living in the fulfilled state. Not the positive version of the negative statement — the statement of someone for whom the negative situation simply does not apply.

Step 4: Let it settle for 10 seconds in the body. Feel the replacement — not perform it. This brief settling turns a cognitive replacement into a felt impression. And the felt impression is the only thing the subconscious responds to.

3 Embodiment Practice — Once Daily, 5 Minutes

Perform the Embodiment Practice once per day. Ideal time: midday. This practice teaches the body — not the mind — the felt reality of the fulfilled state in full waking consciousness.

THE FIVE-STEP EMBODIMENT PRACTICE

Step 1: Sit upright, feet flat, spine alert. Three slow breaths — not to relax deeply, but to arrive. Signal to the body: this requires your full attention.

Step 2: Locate the current feeling. Bring your goal to mind as a felt sense. What does the body produce right now? Where? What quality — tight or open, heavy or light, anticipatory or settled? Do not judge. Simply locate with accuracy.

Step 3: Construct the end-state feeling. Without forcing any expression, begin to locate — however faintly — the felt quality of the person for whom your goal is already achieved. Ask: what would my chest feel like right now if this were simply the current reality? What would my abdomen feel like? The overall body tone?

Step 4: Dwell in it without forcing. Once you locate even a trace of the end-state feeling, stay with it for 3–5 minutes. Do not amplify. Do not perform. Simply remain in it.

Step 5: Close with one spoken statement from the body state you have been dwelling in. A statement of current reality spoken from felt certainty — not a declaration, not an affirmation. The natural speech of someone who knows.

4 Evening — Feeling Review (2 Minutes)

Before your evening mirror practice and SATS session, take 2 minutes and answer three questions in your journal:

THE EVENING FEELING REVIEW — THREE QUESTIONS

Question 1: What was the predominant feeling I brought to my primary goal today? Was it predominantly the feeling of wanting or the feeling of certainty?

Question 2: Were there moments today when the end-state feeling arose naturally, without being deliberately cultivated? If yes — what triggered it?

Question 3: What is the one inner statement I want to carry into tonight's SATS practice — the statement that my body can receive with the greatest degree of genuine certainty right now?

Write one sentence each. Then carry the feeling of your answer to Question 3 into your SATS scene as the felt tone of the entire practice.

“Sensation precedes manifestation and is the foundation upon which all manifestation rests. Be careful of your moods and feelings, for there is an unbroken connection between your feelings and your visible world.”

— Neville Goddard, Feeling Is the Secret

MODULE FOUR — DAILY CHECKLIST

- ☐ Morning feeling check — 30 seconds before Statement of Desire
- ☐ Inner speech intercept — morning
- ☐ Inner speech intercept — midday
- ☐ Inner speech intercept — afternoon
- ☐ Embodiment practice — 5 minutes
- ☐ Evening feeling review — 3 questions answered in journal

MODULE FIVE

The Mirror and the Mouth

Daily Executive Practice

Theme: Declaration · Voice · Identity

MODULE FIVE DAILY PRACTICE

Module Five adds five practices: the morning mirror declaration, three midday micro-declarations, the challenge response as needed, the evening mirror practice, and the sleep declaration. The mirror practices bookend every day with spoken identity. The micro-declarations and challenge response sustain the signal throughout the day.

1 Morning Mirror Practice — 5 Minutes

Immediately following your no-phone protocol from Module One — before reading your Statement of Desire — perform the full mirror practice. This is the most confronting practice in the course. It is also the most transformative.

THE COMPLETE MORNING MIRROR PROTOCOL

Position: Stand in front of your mirror. Feet shoulder-width apart. Spine aligned. Shoulders relaxed. Eyes on your own eyes — not at yourself, with yourself.

Breath: Take three slow breaths. Not to relax — to arrive. You are signaling to the nervous system: this is important. We are present for this.

Declaration: Speak your full personal declaration — all four elements — at full conversational volume. Not a shout. Not a whisper. The volume of a person reporting a fact to someone they completely trust.

Pace: Slower than ordinary conversation. Let each phrase land before moving to the next.

Pause: Two full seconds between each element. The pause is not empty space — it is the time in which the subconscious processes what it just received.

Tone: Declarative, not hopeful. The voice of certainty, not the voice of aspiration.

Eye contact: Held throughout. Do not look away. Whatever arises — emotion, resistance, the impulse to laugh or hurry — maintain the contact and speak through it.

Close: After the final word, hold the gaze for 10 seconds in silence. Then speak quietly: 'I have spoken the truth about who I am.' Then begin the day.

YOUR DECLARATION — FOUR ELEMENTS

Element 1 — Identity Statement: 'I am [the specific identity you are claiming]. I am the kind of person who [specific characteristic].'

Element 2 — Purpose Statement: 'I am building this because [the deeper reason — the people it serves, the legacy it creates, the life it makes possible].'

Element 3 — Action Statement: 'Right now, I am [the specific action you are taking that belongs to this identity]. I am doing the work. I am not waiting for permission. I am leaving.'

Element 4 — Arrival Statement: 'And I feel the certainty of this in my body. My life is already moving toward everything I have decided is real. I can feel it. It is already done at the level that counts. The outer world is catching up to what I already know.'

2 | Micro-Declarations — 3 Times Daily

Three times per day — morning transition, midday, afternoon — speak one sentence aloud (when alone) or internally (in company) that delivers the core of your identity statement.

Use the same sentence every day for at least one week before changing it. Consistency is the mechanism. The subconscious responds to the pattern of a repeated specific phrase more powerfully than to a series of different phrases.

Best moments for micro-declarations:

- First 30 seconds after waking, before rising
- Any transition between activities during the day
- Any moment the inner speech produces a negative statement about your identity

3 | The Challenge Response — As Needed

Every time a circumstance, conversation, or inner state arises that activates the old identity — the identity of lack, limitation, doubt, or past evidence — perform the challenge response immediately:

THE CHALLENGE RESPONSE — FOUR STEPS

1. Notice the activation. Do not fight it. Simply observe: 'The old identity is being triggered.'
2. Pause for 5 seconds — enough to interrupt the automatic pattern without requiring willpower.
3. Speak — aloud or internally: '[Your name], you know who you are. Speak it.'
4. Speak one sentence of identity declaration from the end state. Let it settle for 10 seconds. Then continue.

4 Evening Mirror Practice — 3 Minutes

In the final 20 minutes before sleep — after the Desire Renewal, after the Evening Feeling Review — perform a shorter version of the morning mirror practice.

The full four-element declaration is optional in the evening. What is essential: eye contact with your own reflection and one spoken statement of identity before you enter the SATS practice. Quality of presence matters more than duration. Three to five minutes is sufficient.

Purpose: consolidation. Sealing the identity work of the day before the subconscious processes it through the night.

5 Sleep Declaration — Final Words of the Day

As you settle into your SATS threshold position, speak your sleep declaration quietly aloud. One sentence. Then close your eyes, enter your SATS scene, and give the rest of the night to the subconscious.

SLEEP DECLARATION EXAMPLES — CHOOSE ONE OR WRITE YOUR OWN

"I sleep as the person I have declared myself to be today. My subconscious continues the work through the night."

"I have spoken the truth about who I am all day. I carry that truth into sleep. Tomorrow I speak it again."

"The work of the mouth is done. The work of the subconscious begins now. I rest in what I know is already becoming."

“The word is the most powerful tool available to the human being. Not because of what it describes — but because of what it creates. Speak accordingly.”

— Synthesis of Napoleon Hill and Neville Goddard

MODULE FIVE — DAILY CHECKLIST

- ☐ Morning mirror practice — 5 minutes, full voice, held eye contact
- ☐ Micro-declaration — morning transition
- ☐ Micro-declaration — midday
- ☐ Micro-declaration — afternoon
- ☐ Challenge response — performed at first activation
- ☐ Evening mirror practice — 3 minutes, eye contact, one identity statement
- ☐ Sleep declaration spoken before SATS

MODULE SIX

The Mastermind and the Environment

Daily Executive Practice

Theme: Environment · Mastermind · Circle · Leave

MODULE SIX DAILY PRACTICE

Module Six adds four practices: the full integrated morning protocol in your designated practice space, the weekly Mastermind touchpoint, the monthly Circle Audit, and the evening environment review. These practices build and maintain the outer container that sustains everything built in the inner work of Modules One through Five.

1 Morning — Full Integrated Protocol in Designated Space

Perform all morning practices in your designated practice space — the specific physical location you have set aside for the daily inner work of this course. The physical location is a cue for the inner state. Consistent use of the same space makes the practices easier to enter and more quickly effective over time.

THE COMPLETE INTEGRATED MORNING — IN ORDER

1. No phone — first 10 minutes (Module 1)
 2. Enter designated practice space
 3. Three arrival breaths (Module 1)
 4. Morning mirror declaration — 5 minutes (Module 5)
 5. 30-second feeling check (Module 4)
 6. Statement of Desire read aloud — full voice (Module 3)
 7. Silence question — held 60 seconds (Module 1)
 8. Write one identity intention sentence (Module 1)
- Total: 15–20 minutes. Before the phone. Before the day.

2 Mastermind Touchpoint — Weekly

Once per week, make deliberate contact with each layer of your three-layer Mastermind:

THE THREE-LAYER MASTERMIND — WEEKLY CONTACTS

Layer One — The Living Mastermind: A call, a meeting, a shared work session, or a meaningful exchange with one to three people who meet at least three of the five Mastermind qualities. Not small talk. Genuine engagement with the shared purpose.

Layer Two — The Aspirational Mastermind: A minimum of 30 minutes of deep engagement with one of your chosen teachers — Napoleon Hill, Neville Goddard, or whoever is most relevant to what you are building. Not background listening. Active study. Reading with a pen. Notes in a journal. This is a real relationship.

Layer Three — The Community Mastermind: One touchpoint with your chosen community — a contribution, a comment, a question asked or answered. Keeps the relationship active rather than passive.

3 | Circle Audit — Monthly

Once per month, return to the three-question Circle Audit and re-evaluate each circle of your environment. The three questions:

THE THREE-QUESTION CIRCLE AUDIT

Question 1: After spending time with this person or consuming this content, what is the predominant feeling in my body in relation to my goal — more open or more closed? More certain or more doubtful?

Question 2: What does this person or source implicitly assume is possible for someone like me? Not what they say — what they assume, in what they treat as obvious and what they never question.

Question 3: Is the assumption being broadcast aligned with or contrary to the assumption I am building in this course?

Classify each influence: Builder / Neutral / Eroding. The target ratio at 6 months: builder and aspirational influences constitute at least 60% of your total daily influence exposure.

4 | Evening — Environment Review (2 Minutes)

Before your evening mirror practice and SATS session, take 2 minutes and answer one question:

"Today, was the net influence of my environment moving me toward or away from the person I have declared myself to be?"

If toward: carry that momentum into the SATS practice with gratitude.

If away: perform the Revision Practice on the most eroding interaction of the day — replace its subconscious impact with the revised version before sleep carries it into the night's processing.

"You cannot think your way to a new level while surrounded by people who have never been there. Proximity is not accidental. It is a choice."

— Napoleon Hill, The Law of Success

MODULE SIX — DAILY AND WEEKLY CHECKLIST

- ☐ Full integrated morning protocol — designated practice space
- ☐ Assumption audit — morning (Module 2)
- ☐ Micro-declaration — morning (Module 5)
- ☐ Why Practice — midday (Module 3)
- ☐ Inner speech intercept — midday (Module 4)
- ☐ Embodiment practice — 5 minutes (Module 4)
- ☐ Micro-declaration — midday and afternoon (Module 5)
- ☐ Desire Renewal — before SATS (Module 3)
- ☐ Evening feeling review — 3 questions (Module 4)
- ☐ Evening environment review — 1 question (Module 6)
- ☐ Evening mirror practice — 3 minutes (Module 5)
- ☐ Revision practice (Module 2)
- ☐ Sleep declaration (Module 5)
- ☐ SATS practice — every night (Module 2)

Weekly:

- ☐ Living Mastermind contact — genuine engagement with shared purpose
- ☐ Aspirational Mastermind — 30 minutes deep study
- ☐ Community Mastermind — one touchpoint

Monthly:

- ☐ Circle Audit — all five circles re-evaluated

THE COMPLETE DAILY PROMISE

Leave. Now.

Everything in this document — every practice, every protocol, every checklist — is preparation. All of it is soil work. All of it is infrastructure.

The infrastructure means nothing unless you leave.

The soil is prepared. The seed is planted. The assumption is watered. The flame is burning. The declaration has been spoken. The environment is designed.

The most important thing you can do for any goal is the same thing. Leave. Start. Go.

Thirty days. Every day. Without exception. Not when you feel like it — every day. The days you do not feel like it are the days that build the most.

YOUR 30-DAY NON-NEGOTIABLES

- ☐ No phone — first 10 minutes. Every morning. Without exception.
- ☐ Mirror declaration — spoken aloud, full voice, held eye contact. Every morning.
- ☐ Statement of Desire — read aloud. Every morning and every evening.
- ☐ SATS practice — entered from inside, felt from the end state. Every night.
- ☐ Sleep declaration — the final words of every day.

Everything else compounds on top of these five. But if you do only these five — every day, without exception — the transformation will happen. The system works. It has always worked. The variable was never the system.

The variable is the person who leaves.

Leave.

— The Mindset Sauce —

Daily Executables · Six-Module Practice Guide
realmindsetsauce · themindsetsauce.com